Golden Arches exploring new West Sac frontier

■ Residents of Southport may soon have another dining choice besides the ravioli at Club Pheasant: McDonalds proposes drive-through restaurant on Jefferson Blvd.

By Steve Marschke

The McDonalds Corporation is in the early stages of trying to bring the first fast food restaurant into Southport, the city's southern half.

The new McDonalds is planned as part of a "dual fuel" facility dispensing McDonalds hamburgers next door to Chevron gasoline at a site just north of the Club Pheasant restaurant, which is itself north of Linden Road, along Jefferson Blvd.

"They're looking at the lot on the north side of the new road next to the Club Pheasant," said planner Harry Gibson of the West Sacramento Community Development Department. "They're in the 40-day due diligence" stage of acquiring the property.

The land under consideration is zoned for community commercial and "mixed use" zoning, which is appropriate for the restaurant and gas station, he added.

"They would need a conditional use permit for the drive through," Gibson stated.

One issue currently under discussion is the appropriate style of architecture and appearance of the new buildings. When the city master-planned the 7,000-acre Southport area, the resulting Southport Framework Plan called for each new "village" within it to sport its own architectural theme in the commercial and public areas.

"This village would extend basically from the railroad tracks and Linden Road up to the barge canal and over to Arlington Oaks," said Gibson. "No style has been selected. We met last week with owners of these lands to try to get them thinking about styles they would like or styles they wouldn't want."

The Gainsborough (Bayside) project in western Southport has adopted a "New Orleans" theme, for example.

A variety of landowners own the property being eyed for McDonalds and Chevron.

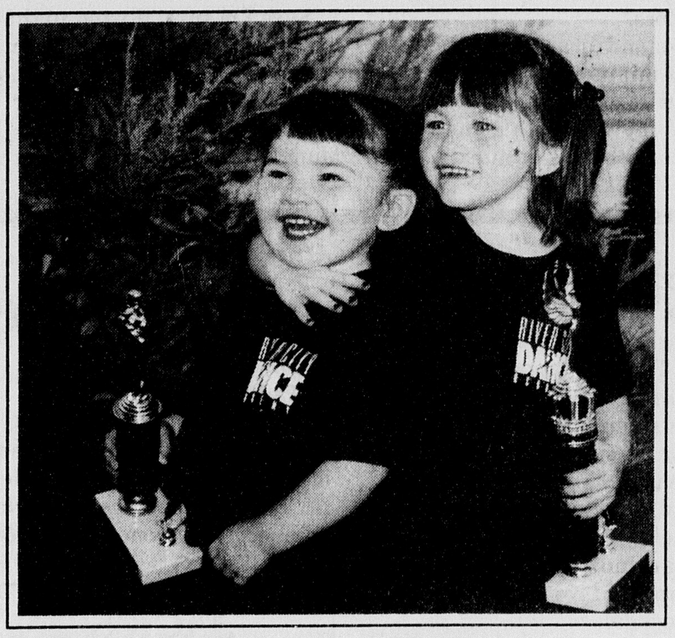

"We have Lou Arges, Mark Freeman, Washington Unified School District, the Riveras, the Turners and Vince Frugoli," said Gibson.

At this stage, McDonalds is hoping for access from both Jefferson Blvd. and from the new road separating the site from Club Pheasant, Gibson reported. No permits have yet been applied for in connection with the project.

A McDonalds spokesman did not return the News-Ledger's call yesterday.

The Chevron could be the first gas station in that region of West Sacramento. Plans for a "Super Cheaper" discount market and gas station further south on Jefferson Blvd. are still in the works, according to The Customer Company, but construction has yet to begin despite project approval.

Man, woman found dead in separate West Sac incidents

Authorities are investigating after two people were discovered dead in West Sacramento in unrelated incidents this week.

Neither death occurs to be the result of homicide at this time, said Lt. Dave Farmer of the West Sacramento Police Department.

On Monday, the body of an unidentified white male about 40 years of age was found in a pond northwest of the boat ramp in the Broderick neighbornhood of West Sacramento.

"We're guessing he'd been there about five to seven days," said Farmer.

An autopsy was under way to determine the cause of death, and there was no obvious sign of trauma.

Tuesday afternoon, a woman was found dead in a trailer she had recently purchased which was on the property of a Sacramento Ave. business.

"Apparently, the trailer had been sold to this woman and she was staying in it a few days, and she died," said Farmer. The woman, age approximately 34, has been tentatively identified.

But her name has not been released because relatives have not yet been notified.

City to explore 'art in public places' ordinance

■ City council will take a look at encouraging -- or requiring -- art at public and private buildings

By Steve Marschke

Christopher Cabaldon, a member of the West Sacramento City Council, has requested city staff to bring the council a report on the possibility of a new city art ordinance designed to promote art in public places as development occurs.

"At a minimum, I'd like to see the ordinance deal with public buildings," he told the News-Ledger yesterday. "We're about to embark on a public building spree and we won't be in that position again for many years."

Cabaldon was referring to the planned construction of a new city hall and community center near West Capitol Ave. He said he hoped to have an ordinance in place setting standards for artistic works at this public site.

But the ordinance could also call for development of art such as sculptures, murals or fountains as new private construction occurs.

"It could deal with fees or incentives for indoor art or statues," said Cabaldon. "It could be to promote related to a (newly constructed) facility, but it doesn't have to be that way. Some cities put the money in a big pot for a mural or statue downtown."

Cabaldon said he hoped to separate the public building art requirements from any discussion of art funded by private construction, since a consensus will be easier to reach on public building art -- and because a plan for art at the new city hall is needed in a hurry.

But he added that he hoped that West Sacramento's business community would become supportive of the idea of including art along with new private construction projects.

"I think it's going to take some work with them," he said, "if we go beyond the public building stages. The chamber and development community may come on board and recognize how, in the long run, arts are good for the community."

That didn't happen when previous city council member Cindy Tuttle promoted a child care ordinance several years ago. Tuttle removed any fees or other encumbrances on local businesses from her ordinance, leaving only positive incentives for local businesses who contributed to local child care facilities -- but the chamber of commerce still declined to give the ordinance the chamber's stamp of approval, fearing future fees and mandatory regulations.

The "art in public places" ordinance has been lobbied heavily by Louisa Vessell, a West Sacramento (Broderick) native who now divides her time between Sacramento and West Sacramento, and is president of the West Sacramento Historical Society.

"I'd like to see us do like Sacramento, which has a 'two percent for the arts' program administered by the Sacramento Arts Council," said Vessell.

Under this program, two percent of a construction budget (including private development) is required to be set aside for arts projects.

"When people drive around Sacramento, there are sculptures, fountains, murals, artistic stairways and artistic lights and windows. The Palamidessi Bridge (completed this year in West Sacramento) could have included artistic lights, railings, or a mural on the side. I understand they're going to have ivy. What's more artistic, a mural or ivy?"

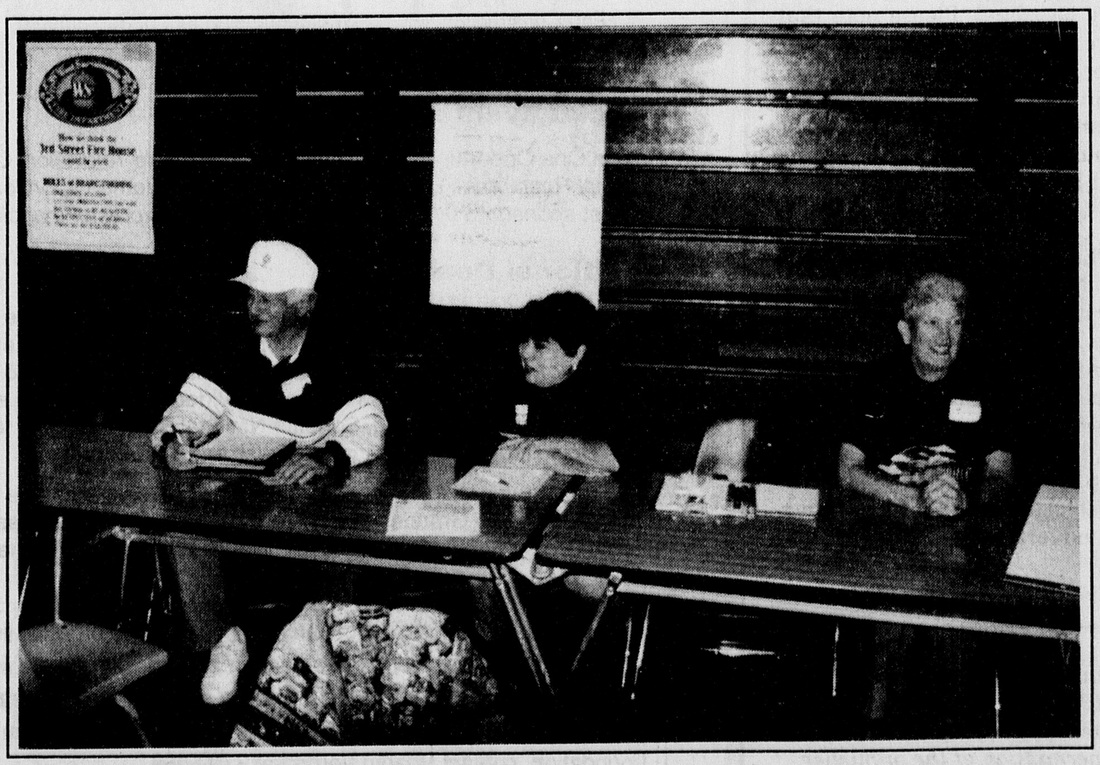

No date has been set for future city council discussion of public art policy.

Crowd brainstorms on uses for firehouse

From Art Schroeder
Community Relations
City of West Sacramento

The future of the old Washington Firehouse at Third and C Streets received enthusiastic discussion at a recent public workshop requested by the West Sacramento City Council. Approximately 50 citizens sat down to brainstorm potential uses for the 57-year old structure. The Oct. 11 workshop at Golden State Middle School was organized by the city Parks and Community Services Department.

Prior to the workshop, the public was invited to tour the old Firehouse. It was the first chance for many to see the building's interior. For others, the visit was a walk into the past. Longtime West Sacramento resident Lorene Brandon remembered many community gatherings. "We'd go up these stairs and you'd have birthday parties, baby showers, Christmas carols, or someone baking cookies."

MARINO PIERUCCI (a planning commission member and unofficial local historian) with Margie Clark and Ida Thompson at Saturday's meeting regarding the Washington firehouse

After touring the old Firehouse, Bill Volkers said, "I'd like to see some modifications and coordinate the building with the riverfront planning. Maybe think about offering recreation for young people."

Thoughts for a museum or community center were popular with many groups. Some suggested the buildings be developed as a tourist attraction, featuring historical fire trucks and a gift shop. Other suggestions included a bed and breakfast, a middle school teen hall, a dance studio, and a cafe or coffee shop. One group speculated about the site becoming a stop for the Yolo Short Line Railroad.

'Street of Dreams' builder

West Sacramento home builder James W. Cameron Construction will join four other builders for the 1997 "Street of Dreams" custom home showcase developed by West Sacramento's Ramco Enterprises at the Lake Alhambra Estates in east Davis.

The show homes will be priced from $459,000 to $750,000. Lake Alhambra reports that the community includes homesites from 8,500 to 17,000 square feet selling from $85,000 to $175,000.

The "Street of Dreams" Showcase is open for viewing beginning Saturday through Nov. 23.

Call Ramco Enterprises at 372-6170 or the Street of Dreams, (209) 483-0253, for information.

Correction

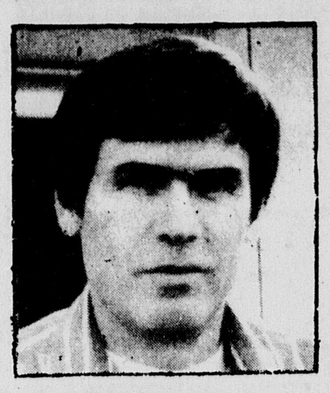

A pair of boxed ads in last week's News-Ledger contained information on Roosevelt's New Deal Programs and on a meeting Saturday to discuss uses of the old New Deal firehouse in the Broderick area of West Sacramento. The ad concerning the firehouse contained some editorial viewpoints with no indication of the author, which is not usually allowed under the News-Ledger's policy.

The ads were run at the request of an associate of the News-Ledger. The newspaper apologizes for violating its policy.

A member of the city council complained, rightly, that some of these comments in the ad were in error. In particular, the notice mentioned that the city was still fighting to demolish the firehouse, when in fact the city council had cancelled that plan and begun a search for future uses of the 1940-era building.

Has Disneyland, of all places, lost its sense of humor?

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

The other evening I was leisurely thumbing through the Sacramento Bee, patiently waiting for one of the headlines to leap from the pages and grab my attention. My wife was seated next to me, and since she hates it when I read sections of the newspaper to her, I of course said, "Hey, Mary, it says here that Governor Wilson is going to depart for Ireland to explore his roots."

"Good!" she said, being one of tens of thousands of hard-working, loyal state workers who haven't received a cost of living raise in over three years. "With a little luck, maybe he'll really like it there and not come back."

"Let's see," I continued, "it also says in here that Michael Jackson has been made an honorary member of the Bafokeng Ka Bakwena tribe."

"Now what in the world is that?"

"It means People of the Crocodile."

"Look, Daryl, please don't read the newspaper to me, okay? You know how I dislike that."

"But just listen to some of this stuff. Paula Jones' lawyers are demanding that President Clinton disclose the names of every single woman he has kissed since he got married -- not counting Hillary of course; and some poor guy actually had to sue his wife to get her to stop smoking; and Ward Connerly doesn't want to be called an African American anymore because he is also 37.5 percent Irish, 12.5 percent Choctaw, and 25 percent French; and 53-year-old Keith Richards of the Rolling Stones says he knows that the chicks still dig him because they're throwing more lingerie at him than ever before."

As my wife began to stand up and leave the room, I blurted out, "Wait a minute! Oh, no! It can't be! I just don't believe it!"

"What is it?" asked my wife with genuine concern, obviously alarmed by the stunned expression on my face.

"Do you remember when we were in Disneyland this past summer?"

"Yes."

"And do you remember that Jungle Cruise we went on?"

"Of course I do. We waited for over an hour to get on that stupid thing."

"And do you remember our wonderful little skipper who told the funny Rush Limbaugh joke?"

"Yes. What about him?"

"Well, he and seven other skippers have been fired for veering from the company's official script and telling their own jokes to park guests."

"You're kidding? That nice young man who never stopped talking the whole time we were on the boat?"

"That's him. I just can't believe it. First it was that sweet old ex-Mouseketeer who got robbed in Disneyland's parking lot, and now this. What's the Magic Kingdom coming to?"

"But are you sure it was our skipper who got fired?"

"Sure I'm sure. Listen to this, and I quote. `At least eight workers on the maritime attraction known as the Jungle Cruise have been fired over the last few months after a crackdown by Disneyland on the use of unauthorized jokes. The Jungle Cruise transports park visitors on a seven-minute journey along a winding river complete with wild animals, exploding pistols and wise-cracking skippers who fire off a series of jokes and casual banter. During one part of the trip, for example, the Jungle Cruise comes across a fake elephant that sprays the ferry with water. Disney's script calls for the skipper to say: "Look out there on the right! It looks like one of the elephants wants to give us a shower." But one of the skippers has been adding his own dialogue, saying, "Hey, it's Rush Limbaugh!" referring to the popular (and somewhat overweight) conservative radio host. "Hey, Rush, don't squirt us, I have some Republicans on board."

"Oh, I'm afraid that's our skipper alright," said my wife, almost as sad as me. "I definitely remember you laughing at that particular joke."

"Well, I just can't believe it," I said, shaking my head and close to tears. "Really funny skippers just don't grow on trees, you know. One of Limbaugh's ditto-heads probably turned him in. They're everywhere, you know -- even in the best of families."

"Try not to take it so hard, Daryl. I'm sure our skipper will find a good job doing something else."

"You know, Mary," I finally said, "it's getting so a day hardly goes by that I don't find another reason to hate Rush Limbaugh."

Grants for local non-profit groups

From the West Sacramento Foundation

The West Sacramento Foundation has recently completed direct mailing of applications for grants to those organizations on its mailing list. If you are a community based organization that has not received an application through this process, and would like to apply for a grant, please contact Sharyn Verdon at 372-5068 or the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce at 371-7042 to inquire about an application form.

Recipients of grants must have 501(c)(3) status and must use funds to exclusively benefit residents of West Sacramento. Applications must be postmarked by October 25, 1997.

The foundation's board members are: Patrick A. McCuen, president; Carol Richardson, vice president; Gregory Verdon, treasurer; Jim Cahill, secretary; and directors, Randy Carasco, Dick Cunha, Ray Jones, Dan Martinez, Steve Oren, Dan Ramos, Steve Roberts and Mark Stockdale.

Attention seniors:

Affordable flu vaccinations

From the Department of Public Health Yolo County

The Yolo County Department of Public Health has scheduled flu clinics in October and November. It is recommended that all persons 60 years and older receive the vaccine, unless there is an allergy to eggs. The influenza vaccine can also be given to people under age 60 who have certain serious chronic diseases. A physician's note is requested for these individuals. The flu vaccine is available for a suggested donation of $4.00. Tetanus vaccine and pneumococcal vaccine will also be available. Adults should update their tetanus immunization every ten years; the cost of this vaccine is $10.00. Pneumococcal vaccine is recommended for adults 65 years and older, is given once in a lifetime and the cost of this vaccine is $8.00. In West Sacramento, the vaccine will be administered on the following dates at their corresponding locations:

Thursday, October 16, from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m.: Sam Coombs Community Center, 205 Stone Blvd.

Wednesday, October 29, from 1 to 3 p.m.: West Sacramento Senior Center, 664 Cummins Way.

Starting Monday, October 27, every Tuesday from 2 to 4 p.m.: 500 B Jefferson Blvd.

For further information please contact staff at the Health Department in Woodland by calling 666-8645.

SPORTS

The Sports Insider

By Richard Novoa

The World Series is just around the corner with both league championship series going down to the wire.

The World Series is scheduled to start on Saturday, Oct. 18, at the N.L. champs' home field at 5 p.m. The best-of-seven classic will probably produce some more record-setting nights of baseball. Many championship records have been tied or broken between the Orioles and Indians, like the most strike outs by one pitcher (Mike Mussina, 15) and the longest game time (4 hours, 51 minutes), just to name a few. In the N.L. series, the Marlins rookie pitcher Livan Hernandez set a record with 15 strike outs. Do you know who holds the record for most strike outs in a world series game?

Bob Gibson, 17 in 1968.

After their bye week, the 2-4 Raiders are preparing for their biggest game of the year against their arch rivals, the 6-0 Denver Broncos. The Raiders, who are six point underdogs, will host the Broncos at 1 p.m. at the Oakland Coliseum. The Raiders need this game very badly to make a run at the playoffs! The Raiders must shut down John Elway to win this game.

Prediction: The Raiders in a big upset! Raiders 27, Broncos 23.

The 49ers (5-1) returned from their bye week and played like world champions. O.K., they were laying the St. Louis Rams, who played like a very bad college team. The 49ers' defense is ranked No. 1 in the NFL because they have yet to allow a rushing touchdown and have 22 takeaways. Next week, the Niners travel, as 10-point favorites, to Atlanta to face the 1-5 Falcons.

49ers 31, Falcons 12.

The Kings opened the pre-season losing both games without Mitch Richmond (sore Achilles tendon), but it looks like Richmond may return by the end of the week. The Kings home opener is against the Houston Rockets on Sunday, Nov. 2, at 6 p.m. Tickets for the Bulls game (Nov. 23) went on sale last Saturday at 10 a.m. They were sold out at 10:07 a.m. If you would still like to purchase tickets to see Mr. Jordan, the Kings still have their 15 and eight game packages that include the Bulls game. Call the Arco Arena box office at 928-6900.

See ya next week!

Youth football squad posts wins

From the West Sacramento Jr. Midget Bears

The West Sacramento Jr. Midget Bears persevered against the tough South Sacramento Vikings on Saturday, October 4, in overtime, 13-12. Overcoming numerous penalties, injuries and turnovers, the Bears upped their record to 4-1 overall as they continued their march towards the All American Youth Football playoffs.

Last Saturday, the Bears continued their drive towards the playoffs with their 4th consecutive win, clobbering their arch-rival Laguna Cardinals, 28-0. The victory gives the Bears a 5-1 record for the season and a 1st place tie with both Elk Grove and Folsom, with two games remaining.

The Bears dominated throughout the contest, consistently mounting long drives to control the clock and seemingly score at will. West Sac's first possession of the game consumed 7:23 of the 1st quarter, culminating in Zeke Butcher's 10-yard scamper around right end behind Dave Maldonaldo and Matt Stephan for the score. Tony Molina ran it in from 3 yards out for the P.A.T. and the Bears led 7-0.

On their next possession, West Sac once again mounted a long drive. Rob Washington's 20-yard pass to Mike Fonbuena for the touchdown and Richard Alper's kick for the P.A.T. gave the Bears a 15-0 lead midway through the 2nd quarter. The Bears' staunch defense, led by the fearsome-foursome of Josh Bush, Jerry Harris, Maldonado and Fonbuena, stopped the Cardinals' final drive of the 1st half to preserve the advantage at halftime.

After stuffing the Cardinals on their initial possession of the 2nd half, the Bears once again unleashed their devastating ground attach. Advancing 73 yards on 12 plays, Butcher followed crushing blocks from Tommy Guerra, Adrian Romero and Pudge Fallon to garner the last 12 yards and the touchdown to lead 21-0. Steven Stephens tallied the Bears' final score on an exciting sprint around left end to score from 30 yards out. Fonbuena's catch of a Washington pass for the P.A.T. finished off the scoring for the Bears.

The Bears' dominating offensive line, led by Guerra and Maldonado, consistently opened gaping holes for the West Sac running backs, allowing Butcher, Stephens, Molina and Anthony Hinojosa to amass a total of 227 yards rushing for the game. Meanwhile, West Sac's defense, led by Washington, Butcher, Stephens, Vitaly Kuzynov, Richard Thompson, and the fearsome-foursome, et. al., shut down one of the league's most potent offenses for most of the game.

West Sac plays again this Saturday, travelling to Rio Linda to take on their old nemesis, the Rio Center Eagles, in a battle of Metro Conference rivals.

Pumpkins & recreation this month

The After-School Adventure, a free after-school program for kids in grades 1 through 5, has returned for an exciting October session. Kids can enjoy a scavenger hunt, explore the wonders of nature, learn to be a thespian, and pick their own pumpkins at the pumpkin patch!

The adventure awaits this week, and throughout October, held in the cafeterias of Elkhorn, Westfield and Westmore Oaks Elementary schools. The program beings directly after school dismisses and ends at 5:30 p.m.

Bryte Park memorial for Tom Johnson

Steve Roberts of the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce announces that plans are being made to plant ten trees as part of a memorial to Tom Johnson, the former vice chairman of the West Sacramento economic development advisory committee, who died in a car accident earlier this year.

The ceremony is still being planned for Oct. 25, and information will be available today from Roberts at the chamber, 371-7042. Anyone interested in helping is also invited to call.

Don Schatzel, director of the city parks department, called Johnson "a terrific, caring human being who serves as a great example to the rest of us."

West Sac participates in bringing free lunches to local youth

The City of West Sacramento Department of Parks and Community Services is a sponsor of the Child Nutrition Program though the State Department of Education. Through the Department's K.I.D.S. program (Kids Involved During Summer), over 370 nutritious hot and cold lunches were served daily to community children during the summer months.

The mission of the Child Nutrition Program is to serve quality nutritious meals to children during the summer break when they are not in school. The Summer of 1997 marked an exciting expansion of the Child Nutrition program to include Linden Park and Memorial Park, for a total of six sites served throughout our community.

The Department of Parks and Community Services reports a successful summer with just over 10,800 free lunches provided to youth ages 18 and under.

Programs such as K.I.D.S. and the Child Nutrition Program offer opportunities for the children of West Sacramento to play, socialize, build self-esteem, and stay healthy with free lunches and fun programs during their summer break.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial:

What about Ward. . .

Did the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce do anything wrong by inviting Ward Connerly to speak at a chamber luncheon?

No.

Connerly, of course, is the Sacramento-area businessman who served as Governor Wilson's point man in the battle to repeal affirmative action through the victorious Prop. 209 ballot initiative. He is also a University of California regent and a contractor to West Sacramento's redevelopment and housing agency.

He is certainly one of the most controversial political figures in California at the moment (although he does fall short of the chamber's description of him as "one of the most dynamic leaders of our era") and it was a coup for the local chamber to line up the speech. You did not have to agree with Connerly's views on race and affirmative action to take an interest in this luncheon. In fact, opponents of Connerly's views may have had an opportunity to "get to know the enemy" through the meeting.

According to the chamber, Connerly wasn't paid for the speech. This means that money from chamber members (local businesspeople who may or may not agree with Connerly's positions) did not go to fill his pockets. It also means money from the taxpayers of West Sacramento, who remain in a kind of subsidizing arrangement with the chamber, did not pay Connerly to speak.

The chamber was within its rights to schedule the event. Protesters were within their rights to raise a fuss.

That said, Connerly's visit did provoke some questions about the chamber and politics.

Have we separated the finances of the chamber of commerce enough from the city's purse strings, or does West Sacramento still have an inappropriate relationship with its chamber?

When the city formed, it gave large grants of money annually to its chamber, which often lobbied for political positions with this taxpayer subsidy. Then we switched to a "contract" with the chamber for services such as managing last week's parade, but gave this contract to the chamber without considering the use of other companies or agencies to provide these services. So the chamber was still "in bed" with local officials through this relationship. Then we discovered no one was keeping track of the performance of the chamber under this contract, and that the city was essentially continuing to give taxpayer money to the chamber without monitoring how it was used. So this year the city is finally starting to follow up on the terms of its contract with the chamber.

Are we at a point where public money is separate from chamber activities such as which political stands it chooses to take -- or which political speakers it chooses to promote? Or do we need some further methods of separating taxpayer dollars from potential use in politics?

If the chamber were to have taken a stand on Prop. 209 -- or if it takes a stand on the next West Sacramento city council race or ballot measure -- will we be comfortable that public tax dollars will not have financed that stand?

Letters to the Editor

Thanks, city!

The West Sacramento Historical Society would like to thank the West Sacramento City Council, Parks and Community Services Department and the citizens of West Sacramento for coordinating and participating in the Third Street Firehouse-reuse-brainstorming session held this past Saturday.

As a result of the city council meeting held on September 10, a directive was issued to Parks and Community Services to provide a public forum for input for reuse for the Third Street Firehouse. Don Schatzel, Director of Parks and Community Services, orchestrated a very professional and absolutely "top notch" program.

The agenda consisted of a tour of the Firehouse followed by a brainstorming session at Golden State Middle School. Don and his staff did an outstanding job in facilitating the session. Dan Harris, City of West Sacramento's Graphic Artist, provided visual displays that enhanced and "fired-up" the community members. The City Redevelopment Agency was represented its director, Val Toppenberg.

Art Schroeder, of the West Sacramento Redevelopment Agency, tackled the task of photographing the days events and interviewing local residents who reminisced about their memories of the Firehouse (look for a story in the near future).

The day was a fabulous success. The air was positive and light-hearted and as a result, many possible reuse ideas were recorded. Thanks again to everyone who participated!

LOUISA VESSELL, President
The West Sacramento Historical Society

Band uniforms?

The Golden State Middle School Warrior Marching Band was out of uniform at last Sunday's Community Day Parade.

Though the Washington Unified School District's Board of Education approved funds for the purchase of new marching band uniforms last Spring, the middle school band was not able to suit up. The uniforms were scheduled to arrive by mid-September this year, but the UPS strike effected production. Fabric, buttons, and other supplies didn't arrive at Stanbury Uniforms in a timely fashion and delayed the production of Golden State's uniforms.

Stanbury Uniforms promised to ship the new uniforms at the end of September. The Warrior Marching Band is waiting patiently for the shipment to arrive.

Golden State's band will be seen in its new black, gold and white uniforms at the Newmann Band Review near Modesto on October 25, at the River City high School varsity football game on November 7, and at the Veteran's Day Parade in Downtown Sacramento on November 11.

Pro-mining loan

I fail to see what the problem is to loan money (from the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture) to gravel mining (in Yolo County).

The city has thrown money into the now gone Vacation Inn. Now the court says the city is to pay over $4 million for weed infested property. I am assuming the loan for gravel money will be repaid?

That is more than the city receives from the lawsuits the city has paid out in the past few years.

I also fail to see what the problem with gravel mining is.

Are we to leave the gravel buried with no use of it? The land in that area only grows weeds and the gravel can be put to good use. Possibly after the gravel mining there will be some type of recreational use for the area.

I guess if I was retired I would not need to worry if jobs were created due to the mining. You people who are retired need to realize it is the workers now working who are paying your pensions.

I would also like to agree with the letter (in the News-Ledger) about fishing on port property. It is the poeple whose jobs are paid by the taxpayers who do not want the taxpayers to have a place to go and fish.

The port area should be opened to vehicles so fishing could be done in that area. Of course, if you have a good paying civil service job, don't worry about the ones who are sending in the money to pay you.

Thanks, rice sponsors

I would like to express the thanks of the City of West Sacramento International Rice Festival Committee to the many people who worked so hard to bring the 1st International Rice Festival to our city October 4 and 5. The Rice Festival was successful because of the cooperation and assistance of many segments of the community. Many groups worked with us to move permits ahead quickly, to set up and clean up, and to provide assistance where and when it was needed.

Money raised during the Rice Festival goes back into the community -- to the 4-H Club, to assist in re-establishing a local club; to the Kiwanis Club for their Iodine Deficiency Disorder project; and to the Rotary Club for their Scholarship Program. All of these groups provided volunteers who assisted with the Rice Festival. Additional donations were made to the youth and cultural groups who presented dance and music programs.

Our major sponsors included Harbor Medical, Capitol Coors, the City of West Sacramento and the City of West Sacramento

Guest Commentary:

Connerly visit a good idea

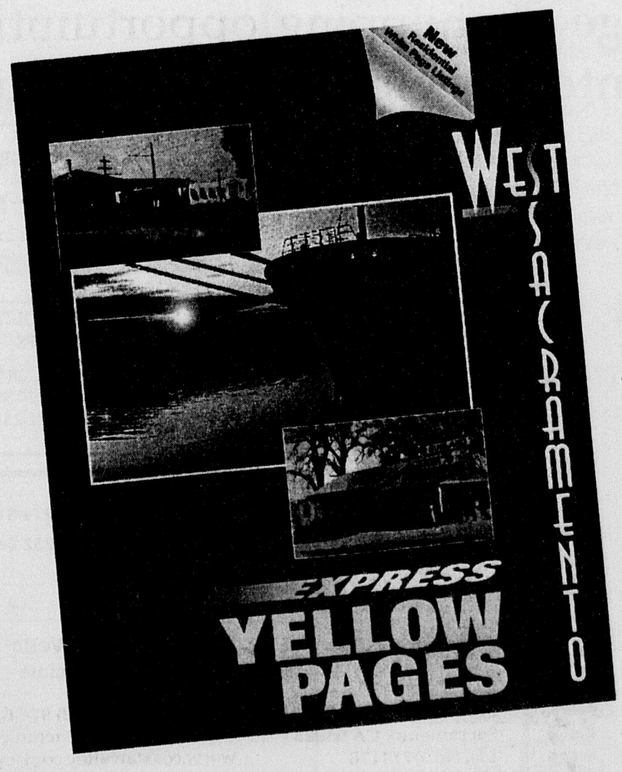

From Bill Fairbairn
Executive Director
West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce

Now that the great City of West Sacramento survived a visit from Mr. Ward Connerly, (it actually was not the end of the world as some had predicted), I thought I would respond to a few of the incorrect statements that have appeared in the letters to the editor section of one of the local papers (the News-Ledger) recently. They were written by people who obviously didn't take the time to call the Chamber and get any facts about Mr. Connerly's visit. Since I've been here, I have always said I have an open door policy to discuss anything and neither of these two consistent letter writers ever contacted myself of the Chamber Staff prior to writing misleading statements about both myself and the Chamber.

To address Mendez's letter first, I am not on "probation," I was unanimously appointed to a permanent position last month by the Chamber's Board of Directors. She asks "What about the businesses, the minority businesses in the Chamber?", regarding our choice of having Mr. Connerly as a speaker. From the record turnout and the favorable comments I received from some of the "minority" small business owners and managers, they were quite pleased at the quality of speaker, even if they disagree with him personally. (I put minority in quotes because to me a business owner

Rice festival's winning chefs:

From: Michael Gorman, Chairman
City of West Sacramento International Rice Festival

The City of West Sacramento Downtown Association and the International Rice Festival Committee are pleased to announce and congratulate the winners of the Rice Festival Cook-Off.

The amateur division judging was very close, with only fractions of points preventing a tie. Three awards were made in the Side Dish category: Nilesh Patel, first place; Marlene Perini, second place; and Kathy Krahn, third place.

Two awards were made in the dessert category: Nilesh Patel, first place; Jeanette Maxwell, second place.

Look for the winning recipes in the Rice Festival Cookbook now being compiled.

The competition among the restaurants participating in the Rice Festival was also close. First Place went to Little Italy.

The "Most Creative Use of Rice in an Art Project" First Place Award goes to Club West. The judges were equally divided as to the remaining entries, and a Second Place tie was declared among the Westfield After-School Adventure Program, the Elkhorn After-School Adventure Program, and the group entry from Westmore Oaks School. The committee would like to express our appreciation to the City of West Sacramento Parks and Community Services Department for their assistance with the Rice Art Competition.

The final contest was to guess how many grains of medium-grain rice are in one pound. Cynthia Clements was the closest and won a Rice Festival T-Shirt and Poster. We appreciate the assistance of the CA Department of Food and Agriculture Grain Inspection Division for their painstaking count of 38,635 grains of rice.

is a business owner and in 1997 I'm not sure who all qualifies as a minority anymore.)

I find it almost humorous for someone to think we would spend taxpayers' dollars to bring in a speaker to our luncheon. Give us some credit. The money we receive from the City goes towards providing services to the city and citizens of West Sacramento as specified per our contract with them. Rusty, the question I have for you is just what is the "other side?" I appreciated your call at six something in the morning to offer me suggested speakers. Please call me and let me know Paul Chavez's connection to local businesses in West Sacramento -- this could be a possibility. Regarding your offer to bring in another gentleman to speak on Prop. 209, I don't know if I or the Chamber could stand all the threats of boycotts and picketing if I dare arrange for something this controversial in West Sacramento again. As far as suggesting the Reverend Jesse Jackson, I'll leave it up to you to try and arrange that one. From what I can tell, he charges a pretty hefty fee -- Perspectives '97 tickets are $150 each and he was scheduled to speak in Sacramento on October 31 (before he pulled out). With ticket prices out or range of the ordinary citizen, my first guess is that he personally would have received a portion of each ticket for expenses and engagement fees. If you want to work on trying to arrange for him to speak at a Chamber luncheon, at no charge, please feel free to pursue him -- it would be great!

To respond to Herr's letter, "you'd rather eat lunch while watching an autopsy?" Wow...enough said about that. I don't know where I ever endorsed Prop. 209 or Connerly's "search and destroy mission" as you called it. The Chamber is neutral on most political issues and we hold a neutral stand on this one. In a democratic society like ours, there is still freedom of speech and everyone is supposed to be able to have their say. However, you're damn right I was proud to announce that Ward Connerly was our featured speaker. It's about time we brought some people in the news to West Sacramento and let them say their piece. I want to stress again that the Chamber is neutral and only providing a forum. You mentioned you wanted to compile a list of local business people that support Connerly's agenda so you would not patronize them in the future. From our turnout, I guess your shopping list will either be very sparse or done out of the area. Is that anyway to support your community?

Everyone focused on the Prop. 209 issues and from what I could tell didn't read the compete article announcing Connerly's visit. Yes, he's known to outsiders from leading the Prop. 209 battle, but to us (the Chamber membership) he's also on the Board of Director's of the California Chamber of Commerce (and if you would have attended, you would have known that he mentioned that).

And finally, I've taken so much heat over being the one to bring Mr. Connerly to West Sacramento. To set the record straight, it wasn't me, although I approved it. The former Executive Director of the Chamber, Steve Roberts, asked me to let you know that he made the arrangements to bring Mr. Connerly to speak here. It is his intention (and mine) to suggest topical and even controversial speakers for our luncheons and to assist in securing them.

He also said he wasn't surprised at the response which, he said, helped increase the attendance at the luncheon.

A good Guernsey cow will produce more than one thousand gallons of whole milk and cream a year. This is enough to feed a family of two adults and three children, with ample skimmed milk left over to feed a veal calf, a pig, and a flock of chickens. An addtional bonus is more than fourteen tons of manure for the spreading.

The crowning fortune of a man is to be born to some pursuit which finds him employment and happiness, whether it be to make baskets, or broadswords, or canals, or statues, or songs.
